

Letter of Recommendation

Dear Sir or Madam,

I greatly recommend Mr. Yang Qiaopeng, one of my most enthusiastic students, to join your graduate program and pursue further research. As his course teacher at Zhejiang Chinese Medical University for two years since 2022, I discovered that he is a competitive candidate as well as a thoughtful student with his ideas and is suitable to work on graduate study through our frequent contact.

In my Fundamentals of Programming Experiments and Course Design and Introduction to Computer Science and Technology courses, I could always see him sitting in the front row, actively interacting with me, and showing great curiosity for computer science and technology knowledge. He has always been working hard and has achieved outstanding academic outcomes. For example, his final Introduction to Computer Science and Technology score was 95/100, ranking top among his peers. Moreover, Mr. Yang exhibited commendable independent learning skills and proactively engaged with challenging problems. He diligently prepared for class by outlining key concepts and actively participated by asking pertinent questions. Furthermore, he spent time delving into programming through self-studying outside of class. By doing these constantly, he can rapidly master complex new knowledge, which he is able to apply effectively in practical applications.

Mr. Yang also demonstrated good interpersonal skills. I teamed him up with other students to work on the assignment. He worked well with the other students. And he was willing to share his experience with other classmates when they got into trouble with some issue. In addition, by interacting with Mr. Yang, I have observed that he can evaluate himself comprehensively and impartially. In our conversations, he has articulated his future goals with precision and resolve, including his plan to pursue higher education abroad after graduation.

Mr. Yang Qiaopeng is a student with intellectual curiosity and initiative, constantly seeking self-improvement. I believe he is ready to tackle the rigorous and challenging studies and research in your program. He will push himself to continue growing and developing into a specialist in computer science and technology. I strongly recommend him for admission and would appreciate your favourable consideration of his application. If more information is required, please get in touch with me using the following methods.

Yours Faithfully,

Li Yi

Lecturer of Zhejiang Chinese Medical University

Tel: +8618267137106

Email: liyi@zcmu.edu.cn

Address: No.548, Binwen Road, Binjiang District, Hangzhou City, Zhejiang Province, 310053, China